conversion between chemical energy and electric energy through the valence state change of vanadium ions. Started in the University of New South Wales, Australia in 1980s, VFB has been applied and proved in Australia, Japan, the U.S., Germany and China in energy storage in wind energy systems, power station peaking, and micro-grid energy storage.

It has formed a full-industrial-chain ecosystem covering renewable hydrogen production, green hydrogen replacement for coal chemical industry, and hydrogen storage, transport and refueling, achieving in-depth integration of clean energy supply and the world's largest single coal-to-liquid project and blazing a concrete, feasible path for ...
